Address, GAZETTE PRINTING CO.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

A National Convention of the Republican party will meet at Chicago, Wednesday, the 2d day of June next, for the nomination of candidates to be supported for President and Vice President at the next election.

Republicans, and all who will co-operate with them in supporting the nominee of the party, are invited to choose two delegates from each Congressional District, four at large from each State, two from each Territory, and two from the District of Columbia, to represent them in the Convention.

J. D. CAMERON, Chairman.
THOMAS B. KEOGH, Secretary.

There are a great many sick Democrats in Maine.

Tilden's Maine campaign was as miserable a failure as was the Cronin movement in Oregon.

Postmaster Payne, of Milwaukee, has been confirmed by the Senate. For some time his case hung fire.

It is said that Garcelon intended to go to Washington to exhibit his back-bone Inasmuch as his back-bone has failed, he might exhibit his cheek. That is on the boom.

The Madison Democrat has interviewed one hundred and fifty-two leading citizens of Madison on the capital punishment question, and ninety-six were in favor of hanging and fifty-six were against it.

There is no Democrat in Maine who is now fit to take the second place on the Democratic National ticket. The sudden and fatal explosion of the Fusion movement in that State has upset the plans of the party for 1880.

The Legislature of Maine adopted resolutions extending "grateful acknowledgments to the Senate and Assembly of Wisconsin for their appreciation of the gravity and importance of events, not only to ourselves, but to the whole country through which the people of this State have just passed." Wisconsin was the first State to take official action regarding the Republicans of Maine.

The Beloit Free Press doubts of the correctness of the position taken by the Gazette regarding Mrs Mack's fate should she be refused a new trial, and capital punishment should be restored. The fact is, in that case, she could not be hanged for the murder of her husband. There is no a lawyer of reputation in this State, who will say that she could be hanged for a crime committed before hanging was restored.

One of the saddest things that has occurred in Washington for a long time, is the downfall of General Hammond, Indian Inspector, who, with Commissioner Hayt was guilty of fraud and perjury in the management of the Indian Bureau. When General Hammond learned that the investigating committee had uncontroverted evidence that he and Hayt were dishonest and that they had conspired to cheat the Government and defraud the Indians, he became conscience-stricken, and was completely paralyzed by a sense of the deepest guilt, and at once fell to the floor in an unconscious condition. The shock was almost death-like and when he recovered sufficiently to speak upon the subject, he made an open confession, which he desired to make in the presence of Secretary Schurz and the Committee, for fear he might die with a load upon his conscience.

The Legislature is doing a land-office business so far as the introduction of bills, petitions and resolutions are concerned. During the first seventeen days of the sessions this year and last, the following busines was transacted as appears from a statement made of the State Journal:

SENATE.

	1879	1880
Bills introduced	45	82
Petitions and remonstrances	47	18
Senate resolutions	15	18
Senate joint resolutions	9	11
Senate memorials to Congress	1	4
Totals	117	132

ASSEMBLY.

	1879	1880
Bills introduced	106	137
Petitions and remonstrances	13	190
Assembly resolutions	13	23
Assembly joint resolutions	9	15
Assembly memorials to Congress	1	6
Totals	142	371

This indicates that there will be a large amount of business transacted this session, and the probability is that the session will not be unusually brief.

The address delivered in Chicago on Thursday evening by Colonel Ingersoll, in honor of the one hundred and forty-third anniversary of Thomas Paine's birth, is being severely criticised by those who are deadly opposed to the theological views espoused by Paine and cherished by Ingersoll. About Paine's theology men have a right to differ and do differ, but regarding his patriotism, men have no right to differ. "In the darkest hour of the struggle for freedom from British rule, his pen was the bugle blast which rang out over the land, and stirred into white heat the political heroism of the struggling Colonists." Colonel Ingersoll dealt largely with Paine's religious views and the manner of his death, and of course did not fail to severely combat the Church of the present day, which was probably out of place and uncalled for. When he attacks the Church, he touches "what is most tenderly sacred to the hearts of millions."

It will be regretted by Mr. Kutchin's friends throughout the State that he was not confirmed by the United States Senate for Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third District. Yesterday the Gazette published the vote of the Senate on the question of his confirmation, from which it appears that he was defeated by a strict party vote—25 Republicans voting for the confirmation, and 27 Democrats against it. Senator Carpenter used all means within his power to secure the confirmation, but Senator Thurman, of Ohio, who represented the bitter and partisan feelings of General Bragg, member of Congress from Mr. Kutchin's district, succeeded in solidly uniting all the Democrats against him. This is a piece of work which can not reflect credit upon General Bragg, Senator Thurman, or any Democrat who voted against confirmation. Mr. Kutchin is too good a man to fall a victim at the feet of his political enemies. He may have said some hard things against General Bragg and his party, and doubtless as severe things were said by the other side against Mr. Kutchin and his party. General Bragg knows that there are even amenities in war, and that there should be amenities in politics, and that it is unmanly to allow partisanship and personal spite to defeat a President's appointment to office, especially when the nomination is one altogether worthy to be made.

THE CAPITAL PUNISHMENT BILL.

Dr. S. L. Lord, member of the Assembly from the Third District of this county, has introduced the important and much talked of bill to restore capital punishment in Wisconsin. Inasmuch as the bill is one of grave importance, and one which has its strong friends and bitter enemies, we give below its chief provisions, that all interested in the subject may know what kind of a law the friends of capital punishment will labor to have enacted. The bill provides that the following subdivision shall be added to section 4338 of the revised statutes, which relates to crimes and the punishment thereof:

"A." The manner of inflicting the punishment of death shall be by hanging the person convicted by the neck until dead, at such time as the court shall direct, not less than fifteen nor more than twenty-five days from the time sentence is pronounced: provided, the day set shall not occur before the tenth day of the term of the supreme court, and occurring next after the pronouncing of the judgment: and provided, that for good cause the court or governor may prolong the time. At the expiration of the time so prolonged, the judgment shall be executed the same as if that were the time fixed by the judgment for the execution thereof.

Subdivision "B" provides that the person to be hanged, shall be executed within the walls of the prison of the county, or within a yard or enclosure adjoining the prison.

Subdivision "C." makes it the duty of the Sheriff or his deputy, to be present at such hanging, and to invite the presence of the Circuit Judge, the District Attorney, the Clerk of the Court, two physicians, and twelve reputable citizens to be named by the Sheriff. The immediate relatives of the condemned shall also be permitted to view the execution, provided they shall be over twenty-one years of age, and none others, not even newspaper reporters, shall be permitted to witness the solemn ceremonies and the fatal drop.

The first section of the bill provides that any person convicted of murder for premeditated design shall suffer death or imprisonment in the penitentiary for his natural life or for a term not less than fourteen years. If the accused is found guilty by a jury, the jury shall fix the punishment, the same as in Illinois; but if the criminal plead guilty, the Court shall fix the penalty.

This bill, because of its gravity and importance, will draw out a vast deal of discussion both in the Legislature and in various parts of the State. It is a question of deep interest to society and humanitarians will contest its passage at every step, and will use all means possible and honorable, to secure its defeat. There is another class, and a very large one too, that will work with equal zeal and not less ability, for the enactment of a law which shall restore the gallows. Both are honest in their opinions, and both are entitled to be heard. The capital punishment bill will be championed by Dr. Lord its framer who will be equal to the task. He has in his possession important documents and statistics which will serve him a good purpose in his efforts to secure the passage of the bill. In taking this course, we believe he represents the will of ninety-nine out of every hundred in Rock county.

UNDER THE WHEELS.

GREEN BAY, Jan. 30—Delancy Brooks a brakeman employed on the Wisconsin Central railway, was killed last night. He was on the freight due here at midnight, and, it is supposed, fell from the top of a box car between the cars, and the train passed over him. The accident happened near Ledgeville Station, and the train backed some distance till the conclusion was reached that he had been left at some station further back. The passenger train due here early this morning ran over the body, the remains being so shockingly mangled that they were only identified by keys found on his person. Deceased was 25 years old, has relatives living here, and a widowed mother in Ashtabula county, Ohio.

FLOPPING OVER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—A meeting of the friends of Blaine will be held to-morrow to get up a serenade and reception in honor of his services in putting down the recent rebellion in Maine. The National Republican, which has been for Grant, first, last and all time, begins to show signs of flopping over to Blaine.

THE TURF.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 30—The Milwaukee Driving Park Association has concluded to give a trotting meeting here on June 8th to 11th, inclusive. The purses have not been arranged but will aggregate not less than $8,000.

Recently, Thomas Howe, of Barrington, N. H., aged 100, proposed to a lady of 85 and was rejected.

BOYNTON VS. SHERMAN.

The Libel Suit to Be Dropped and a Court Martial Asked for.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—General Boynton has decided not to sue General Sherman for libel, but he asks for a court-martial to try him. The articles of war require that an officer shall be tried by his peers; but as Sherman has no peers, the Secretary of War cannot compel him to be tried, in case General Sherman cares to hide behind this provision. He may, if he chooses, waive the rule, and ask to be tried by a court to be composed of officers of the highest rank available. Boynton does a bad thing in practically asking Sherman to select the tribunal by which he shall be tried—a tribunal that cannot be composed but of Sherman's own immediate subordinates. Boynton's letter to Secretary Ramsey, preferring charges of falsehood and conduct unbecoming an officer, will be handed to General Sherman in the usual and official manner, but it is not believed among army officers here that Sherman will take any notice of them. In case he does not, Boynton will bring suit for slander in the courts.

THE EXODUS.

Mr Voorhees' Investigation Farce of the Negro Exodus.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan 30—The exodus investigation, as manipulated by Senator Voorhees, creates only adverse comment among fair minded men of both parties while Democratic leaders are unable to conceal their chagrin at the miserable failure. Thus far only Democrats have been subpœnaed, and in every instance they are the personal friends and followers of Mr. Voorhees. These men are in a position to know nothing of the exodus or of the disposition of the colored people who have come to the State. Most of them, notably the delegation from Terre Haute, are lobbyists and politicians ward workers. The arrival of each man is watched with increasing interest, and scarcely a day passes that a delegation cannot be seen at the Union Depot in this city en route to Washington. In many instances these men are supplied with railroad passes, thus pocketing railroad fare as well as per diem. Governor Hendricks has not been sent for. This, it is understood, is in obedience to his wishes and request. It is noticeable, too, that the editor of the Sentinel is ignored, as well as other prominent members of the party who have had much to say of the exodus, charging positively that it is a Republican conspiracy to import voters for the purpose of defeating the Indiana Democracy. If these men know so much, the question naturally suggests itself, Why are they not summoned before the Committee instead of the political dead beats and bummers who have been sent for?

Thus far about 900 negroes have come to the State, of whom 150 or 200 are voters. These are distributed in the central counties of the State, and, so far as known, not one of them is without work, and a good home. Most of them are married and have large families. They are accustomed to farm labor, and their expressed desire is to live only upon farm. That they are wanted by the farmers is evidenced by the hundreds of applications from all parts of the State asking that these families be sent them. A colored clergyman of this city who has interested himself in the movement said to-day that if 2,000 of them were here now work and homes could be provided for all within a week. Senator Windom has been put in possession of these facts, and at the proper time witnesses will be subpœnaed giving the whole truth of the matter. A bundle of 200 letters was sent him yesterday, in which farmers asked that colored men be sent them. The names of farmers employing such help have been also furnished, and before the "Tall Sycamore of the Wabash" is done with it he will likely have an opportunity of learning something of the needs and demands of a State which he professes to represent.

POLITICAL.

The Delegate from North Carolina and Virginia to the Republican Convention.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Private letters and dispatches were received here to-day giving an account of the meetings of the Republican State Committees of Virginia and North Carolina, and the reports in the newspapers were very generally corroborated. In North Carolina there will be no State Convention to select delegates to Chicago, but the Senate Committee have selected the four delegates-at-large, and the committees of the several Congressional districts will select two delegates each. The four men selected as delegates-at-large day before yesterday will vote for Sherman's nomination, and it is believed that a solid delegation for Sherman will be obtained from the State. The Virginia Republicans have decided to hold a convention in March at Staunton to select delegates to the Chicago Convention. The Virginia people are divided between Blaine, Grant and Sherman.

GOVERNOR FAIRCHILD.

PARIS, Jan. 30—A grand banquet was given to Minister Fairchild, Wednesday evening, by Mr. Henry Homen, of New York, which was designed and carried out on a scale of splendor that made it one of the principal events of the present season. Twenty-five gentlemen, representing the principal members of the American colony sat down to the table. After the cloth was removed, speeches eulogizing the guest of the evening were made, and a most feeling reply was made by the recipient of these honors. He reviewed his connection with the colony, and spoke of the many ties of friendship which endeared it to him. Many interesting reminiscences of diplomatic life and not a few stories of old war times were recounted, some of his former comrades being present. His remarks were listened to with deep attention, and when he concluded he was warmly congratulated by his friends. A farewell dinner will be given to the consul Saturday by the Stanley club, to which many distinguished people have been invited. Congratulatory messages have been received from Liverpool, where ex-Governor Fairchild officiated as United States consul in 1878.

OBITUARY.

Death of Hays McKinley of the Kenosha Telegraph.

KENOSHA, Jan. 30—Hays McKinley, editor and proprietor of the Kenosha Telegraph, while on his way from his office to his boarding place, fell near the Grant House at 6 p. m. yesterday, and received injuries that caused his death at 12 o'clock last night. A few years ago the wife of Mr. McKinley sickened and died. His children, within a brief period, followed in the same road, and met the same fate. These heart rending bereavements caused him to steadily decline, and it was noticeable that during the last two or three years his walk was labored and painful. He was thoroughly educated in his profession, and as a writer he was conscientious. His habits were above reproach. One night call him morose and unsociable, but the loss of his family bereft him of habits of sociability.

EDISON'S LIGHT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—It is stated to-day that Edison has perfected his plans for the electric light that is to be shortly established here. An attempt, will, however, be made to have 700 lights aglow in Menlo Park before anything practical is done here. Edison is annoyed by the adverse criticisms of some scientific men, who, he says, condemned his light without seeing it.

A Washington special says that among the patents issued Tuesday was one to Edison for his recent electric lamp, described as a combination of a carbon receiver made of glass, and conductors passing through the glass, and from which receiver the air is exhausted for the purpose of giving light by incandescence.

WEDDING FEES.

What the Wealthy People of New York Pay the Minister Who Marries Them.

The Rev. John Hall, D. D., of New York, has one of the wealthiest churches in this country and was recently said to be in receipt of a salary of $30,000. The paper which made the statement is given to exaggeration and doubled the sum Dr. Hall's salary is nearer $15,000 than $30,000. The statement was also made that the Doctor receives about $10,000 a year in wedding fees. This is not surprising, for many who come to him to be married are millionaires or the sons and daughters of millionaires. Dr. Hall rushes into print to correct the statement as to the fees. He says: "If I publish the actual facts I have a little apprehension that I may lose the respect of a part of the community—that part which always looks deferentially on large sums of money. I am aware that a slight streak of envy sometimes mingles with the respect, but that is neither here nor there. If I tell the readers of the portion of the press that deals in information of this kind that I never, personally, knew of a wedding fee of more than a hundred dollars and that I never received as much as five hundred dollars of marriage fees in one year, why, I may go down in the estimate of my fellow-citizens. I shall be to them no more than one-twentieth of what I seemed. My shadow will be less. Not only so, but I may seem to reflect on that particular part of the press that effects this kind of news, and I may not get credit in future even for comparative good looks."

Having thus knocked $9,500 off this wedding fee account, Dr. Hall proceeds to denounce the whole wedding fee business. He asks: "Would it not be a good thing to cut off all the small favors given to ministers—such as half-fare passes on railroads, wedding fees, and even 'donation parties,' and let ministers be put, like other men, on living salaries?"

This is too sweeping. As to railroad fares and donation parties it is well enough; but the wedding fee is altogether a different affair and rests on a different basis. There is no reason why a man should ride for half price simply because he is a minister. If he render a service to the company transporting him, he deserves pay for it and should be rewarded accordingly. The donation party is an outrageous nuisance which should not be inflicted on an decent minister. But the wedding fee is a fair compensation for a special service. It is a matter almost impossible to fix as to definite amount. Men pay all the way from a dollar to a thousand for getting married. A man who is very poor or very mean, or who does not think that the lady of his choice is of any particular account, may satisfy his soul by handing the officiating clergyman a dollar or two. A wealthy man, or one who marries an heiress, can as easily pay a hundred or five hundred, or even a thousand dollars. There are many cases in which a hundred dollar bill is gracefully slipped into the hands of the clergyman, although Dr. Hall does not seem to have much of a run of this kind of luck. The average fee among well to do people is probably ten dollars. Most clergymen give their wedding fees to their wives. An Episcopal clergyman who made a practice of this was embarrassed by the receipt of a pair of trousers as a fee from a nice young tailor for whom he performed the marriage service.

ZACH CHANDLER.

The Eulogies Delivered in the House of Representatives on the Stalwart Senator—The Speech of Mr. Williams.

On Wednesday, the 28th inst., the House of Representatives suspended business to allow fitting tributes to be paid to the late Senator Chandler. The following is the speech of Mr. Williams, of this city:

Mr. Speaker, the largest tree in the forest sometimes breaks the stillness of the day by the suddenness of its fall; so Zachariah Chandler startled a continent when he went down to death! Thirty-six hours before he died he was the guest of my own city. He spoke there, both in the afternoon and evening, each time to a large concourse of people. He retired at twelve o'clock, and rested well through the night.

Many of our citizens bade him good-bye at the early train for Chicago; and little did they think as the cars rolled out into the light of that beautiful morning that it was the last he was ever to behold on earth! Yet so it was, for within twenty-one hours thereafter he was dead.

I think only those who saw him during these last hours of his life could realize the suddenness of his death. Though the grim messenger walked beside him, no shadow fell upon his pathway. His thoughts were all of life; he could scarcely have been thinking of the possibilities of death; his every act and energy was devoted to the work before him; he talked of nothing else, and apparently he thought of nothing else.

He was the avant courier of Republicanism. His voice had rung out from Maine to Wisconsin. He had moved the people by the potency of his presence and the earnestness of his appeals. He believed that national destiny itself trembled in the balance, and he imparted this belief to the masses wherever he went, for they knew that his heart was in his work, and his convictions were in his words.

Amid scenes like these it could hardly have been possible that he had a thought of what was to come. He could scarcely have dreamed that while yet the plaudits of thousands were ringing in his ears he was to meet, in the heart of that great city, in the dead hour of the night, in the silent loneliness of his room, that dread messenger, who gave no warning, and accepted no delay; yet so it was, for he awoke only from the sleep of life to sink back again in the sleep of death.

No, Mr. Speaker, none of those who remember the earnest manner and pathetic voice with which he besought the chairman of each successive meeting to telegraph him at Detroit on the night of the election the result of the contest, can realize the overmastering interest which had taken possession of him. The news he so longed to hear did flash along the wires, but whether it died out in the darkness of that shoreless sea, or whether it penetrated the mystic regions of the great beyond, no word ever comes back to tell us.

We, who speak of Zachariah Chandler here to-day must speak of him as he was, for he never feared to speak for himself. And his words will be cherished and remembered when our are lost and forgotten. No flowers of rhetoric, no high wrought historic parallels, no half drawn apologies for what he was or what he did will do for him.

He was a plain, blunt man. He was combative, he was aggressive, and in what he believed to be right he was relentless. He was a man of the people, he was a friend of the poor, he loved liberty, he hated oppression, he abhorred treason, and he detested hypocrisy. He was a partisan, he was a patriot, he was a hero!

Like the oak he resembled, he was reared in storms and rocked in tempests. Strong and massive in body, he was stronger in will; firm in principle, he was formidable in argument; quick to see the salient points of a question, he brought his broad common sense to bear upon it, and not unfrequently by a single sally he broke through and demolished a whole battalion of sophistry. Who can ever forget the expression of that face, or the instantaneous effect upon thousands, when from the rostrum he put that one question:

If this is not a government, what did the rebels surrender to at Appomattox? I tell you, my friends, they surrendered to the Government of the United States of America!

Or when, on that memorable night, in the Senate of the United States he made that terrific onslaught which startled both sides of the Chamber, what member of the opposition did not feel the force of what he said? In the language of Mr. Webster, it was one of those outbursts of passion and power which, if they come at all, come "like the outbreaking of a fountain from the earth, or the bursting forth of volcanic fires, with spontaneous, original, native force!"

This was the secret of Mr Chandler's power. His methods were clear and practical, his reasoning synthetic, and his attacks spontaneous and irresistible. While others were examining the bricks and mortar in the structure, and carefully calculating the resistance to be overcome, he selected his point of attack, and with crowbar and sledge breached the wall and carried the citadel by storm.

Savants and philosophers may style these methods crude and Western, but while the Douglas, Morton, and Chandler live the people will believe that they possess a native, innate force which all the learning of the schools cannot give.

The opinion is often expressed that certain very good and competent men are holding back a political millennium by their presistent refusal to accept office and enter upon public life. Somebody has ungraciously said of such, that they were made of two parts of selfishness and two of timidity. I know not how the fact may be, but if it be true, Zachariah Chandler did not belong to this class. He never took counsel either of his selfishness or his fears. He was not possessed of that happy temperament which enabled him to stand quietly by and while aggressive wrong was crushing out defenseless right.

By the very nature of his make-up he was forced to enter the arena. And thus he met all the malignity, denunciation, and abuse which ever come to the the earnest, the faithful and the true. Yet nothing could dissuade him. The critical might carp, the mediocre patronize, and the malign scoff and deride, but all the pigmies of earth and sky could not stay the staunch old hero in the work he had marked out for himself. To such a man the holding of civil office was the merest incident in the world; for whether in public or private life he was the natural defender of the people.

That Mr. Chandler was intense and bitter, that he sometimes wrongly suspected the motives and acts of others, is only to say that he belonged to the class of positive men; but that under it all there was a broad and generous sincerity and a heart as tender as a child's, none who knew him need be told. He was, indeed, in earnest; but if any supposed his earnestness took on only the cold malignity of hate, they studied his character to but very little purpose. I could only claim to know him as we all knew him here, yet I do not care to be told that he was moved by other than the loftiest and purest motives.

Only the night but one before he died, in my own house, in common with others, I saw that firm lip quiver and those stern eyes moisten as he recounted the measureless wrongs which had been visited upon the poor freedmen of the South; and I believe mortal man was never actuated by higher or holier motives than he when he swore by the God that made him that he would never bate one jot or title of effort until those monstrous wrongs should be righted.

I allude to these things here in no partisan spirit, for that should be banished from these halls to-day; but I speak of them only to be just to him in his grave, as he was just and fearless before all the world. And I feel sure that he could have left any injunction behind, it would have been: "If you speak of me at all, in the language of sacred song, speak of me 'just as I am.'"

Burke, I think it was said that true sentiment was the logic of common sense. Such, I think, was the sentiment of Zach Chandler. It was plain, practical, and direct.

No more touching provisions can be found in the wills of public men than those of Thaddeus Stevens and Mr. Chandler. While the former made no provision for the care of his own grave, he set aside a sum and directed that the sexton keep his mother's grave in good order, and plant roses and other cheerful flowers at its four corners every spring.

So Mr. Chandler, with just words enough to express his meaning, said, in effect, to his wife and daughter, "You are my only heirs; as you have loved and trusted me, so I love and confide in you. I lay my fortune at your feet, and that you may be unfettered in its enjoyment and use, I relieve it from any word coming back from the grave."

Could affection be more tender? Could confidence be more complete? Where shall the well-springs of the human heart be better sheltered than in the wills of these two remarkable men?

Impartial history will assign Mr. Chandler his proper place in the ranks of America's public men. We cannot do that here to-day. It may, however, be safely said that if Seward, Chase, and Sumner might draft the plans for the fabric of freedom, Wade, Stevens, and Chandler might lay its foundations and lift its walls to completion. Noble trio. How fiercely they wrought; how well they triumphed.

The last of them now sleeps on the banks of the river he loved so fondly. And to-day Wisconsin comes with her foster-mother, Michigan, to lay a garland upon his grave. He loved to tell us that the boundaries of his own county of Wayne once embraced both our States. Representatives of Michigan, your loss is our loss; and over our common calamity a nation grieves to-day. We come to mingle our tears with yours, and to utter the fervent prayer that he who sleeps so near your metropolis may rest in peace so long as that city shall stand—yea, so long as the waters that roll by it flow outward to the sea.

From a Distinguished Physician.

Prof Green, a distinguished allopathic physician, wrote to the Medical Record of Atlanta, Ga., to the effect that after all other means had failed, he sent for the Kidney Cure, (Safe Kidney and Liver Cure), and to his astonishment cured a serious case of Bright's Disease by administering it, and afterwards found it equally beneficial in other cases. He advised his brother physicians to use it in preference to anything else for kidney disorders.

SAMUEL CLEMENS' MISTAKE.

How Mumm Got the Best of the Humorist—He Takes the Wrong Girl Home.

"I see a story going the rounds of the press headed 'Twain's Best Joke,' which, while it is very good, is not the best with which his name is connected," said a lady at a social gathering in Denver the other evening. And she related what must have been a very amusing affair—a joke in which the inimical Mark figured but which he did not originate, and the true inwardness of which he probably does not yet understand. It was several years ago that Mark chanced to be in the goodly city of Chicago. He became acquainted with the heroine of this narrative through a lady friend, and these three persons added a fourth, another gentleman, to the list of acquaintances, and together they started out for a "lark," deciding to take one of the fashionable parks. They rode in a double carriage, Mr. Clemens being the escort of the lady who tells the story, now one of Denver's soberest matrons After a pleasant drive the quartet reached the place of their destination, and were soon strolling about the grounds. As the weather was warm ices were ordered, but instead of beer, the cooling beverage of the summer season, they ordered champagne. Mark was especially gay and light-hearted on this occasion. He swallowed one glass after another of Mumm until his curly head began to buzz and his eyes grew dim Preposterous as it may seem, Mr. Samuel L. Clemens, the great American humorist, was drunk. What is more and worse, he was outrageously drunk.

Our Denver lady, having become recently acquainted with Mr. Clemens, declined to ride home with him in his intoxicated condition; but the other lady felt it to be her duty to accompany her friends back to the city, and not daring to be the only female in a party of them, she prevailed upon a third young lady to take the place of the Denver girl by Mr. Twain's side. This Denver girl thought she had given Twain a snub which he would feel to the last day of his life, but imagine her surprise at receiving a note the next day, a note from the humorist, apologizing most sincerely for his conduct and regretting with tears in his eyes that his intoxicated condition should have rendered him incapable of distinguishing his fair companion from another woman, thus bringing about the awkward circumstances of his having taken the wrong girl home. The lady is still convinced that Mark was honest in his protestations of innocent ignorance; nevertheless, she does not relish the idea of having another girl mistaken for her—even by a mellow humorist.

The Cost of Strikes.

From the New York Times.

In discussing the cost and results of strikes, a writer in Fraiser's Magazine estimates that the emigrants' strike, which began in February last and continued three weeks caused a loss of $70 000 to the strikers. The average number of men out of employment during this time was 500. If no strike had taken place their wages would have amounted to $144 000 But they received from society funds about $74,000, reducing their personal loss to $70,000. Of the notable srikes that have taken place during the past two years that of the London masons which lasted thirty three weeks and threw 1,700 men out of employment, cost the strikers about $130,000. The carpenters' strike in Manchester involved about the same number of men, and cost nearly as much. The strike and lock-out of the boiler makers and iron ship builders on the Clyde cost the society over $65,000, the estimated loss being $1,500 000 The losses of the miners in the Durham strike are estimated at $1,200 000. In the above strikes, excepting that of the engineers just mentioned, the strikers suffered disastrous defeats. While strikes are exceedingly expensive luxuries to the men, even when successful, the writer above cited maintains that the number of strikers from which the employes reap no advantage are extremely few, as compared with those from which they derive some benefit, proximate or remote. In illustration of what is sometimes gained by the strikers, he cites the builders' strike and lockout in London in 1859 About 24,000 men quit work, but many of these obtained work elsewhere. The number engaged in the struggle was from 6,000 to 10,000. The number interested in the result of the contest was between 40 000 and 50,000. After spending upwerd of $250,000, besides the loss of wages the men were compelled to yield. But they gained the Saturday half holiday, which is now enjoyed by not less than 10,000 building operatives. This is computed to be a gain to the men of about $2,800 000 a year, if not in money, at least in money's worth. The writer claims that the employes get over their losses much more speedily that their employers. With the former, he says it is a matter of temporary inconvenience, or, at most, of present suffering only; with the latter it means not a mere derangment of business for the time being, but in many cases future embarrassment, if not failure. Judging from the facts and figures given in the article referred to, it would seem that strikes are more frequent and longer continued in Great Britain than in the United States, and the suffering and losses are proportionally greater.

The Woman of Genius Who Designed the American Flag.

From the Bradford Star.

Now that the modern Penelope is stabbing her white fingers with the point of a cruel needle and getting the aesthetic bulrush in faithful Kensington colors on screens and panels it is interesting, says the Washington Post, to recall the achievements of our grandmothers in that direction. In the quiet old days before the sewing machine, noisy and aggressive, forced dainty and womanly handicrafts from the field, they did some work that was greatly to their credit, and One of at least has been embalmed in the amber of history by means of her needlework. She was the genius of the scissors, and with that good blade Excalibur she cut her way to fame and fortune. General Washington himself was roused to enthusiasm by the deftness with which Mrs. Betsey Ross, of Philadelphia, folded and cut at one fell stroke, a white satin star. For forty-six years she made flags for the army and navy.

At the request of Dr. Franklin, Mr. George Morris and Colonel George Ross, she made the first flag of the United States, and Thomas Paine who seems to have had a finger in every pie in those good old times, showed her how to set the stars on the flag.

It was at one time proposed to omit the eagle from the Navy flag, but against this Paul Jones protested. Besides being flag-maker extraordinary to the general government, she was an artistic upholsterer, and furnished parlors, theaters and hotels. She not only worked herself, but gave employment to all her relatives and friends. She upholstered all the ocean steamers that plied between the new England and the old. For all these purposes she herself imported the richest fabrics, and nothing, says the sketch of her life which has come down to us, could be more bright and beautiful than the draperies which she designed. Probably Mrs Ross did not say "designed." She would have been much more likely, in the sensible phraseology of the day, to say that she "cut them out" and "made them up." She would look with scant admiration on the dab ous colors and half and quarter shades of modern panels For herself she liked something bright and decided, and always combined with primary colors. Her proudest victories were won by that solid phalanx of the seven uncompromising shades.

Caution.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS ARE SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

The great demand for them has caused a number of unscrupulous parties to make and sell worthless imitations under the name of Capsiccum or Capsicin. As the market is flooded with inferior plasters selling at any price it is important for the consumer to know which is the best. It is well known that some of the cheap plasters have been examined and found to contain injurious ingredients which make them dangerous to use, causing paralysis and other diseases. All genuine BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTERS have the word CAPCINE cut in them. SEABURY & JOHNSON, Pharmaceutical Chemists, New York. PRICE 25 CTS. 23w4w dcod

THE GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1880.

OUT IN THE WILDS.

Once upon a time, as the primer books say, while trading on the western coast of Africa, in the equatorial regions, I ran my vessel about twenty miles up one of the rivers in that vicinity, and remained there several weeks, having a very profitable intercourse with some of the inland tribe of natives. A portion of my leisure time I spent in hunting through the thick woods and dark jungles for which that coast region is famous, and it was on one of those excursions that I first met a living gorilla.

My guide was a native of the cannibal species, black, low browed, thick skulled, and but little removed from the brute animal himself. He could make himself understood, however, knew the country well, and stood in such salutary awe of the wonderful white man, that I felt perfectly safe in trusting myself with him far beyond the reach of friends, and in places where I would not have ventured with any single one of my countrymen.

One day we had thus ventured off into one of the deepest recesses of jungles where the spreading branch and leaves were so thick and dense that scarcely a ray of the vertical sun could find its way down through them to the damp, malarious earth beneath, when suddenly we were both startled by a succession of the wildest and most discordant shrieks I had ever heard—though with something human in the sound—accompanied by the rustling of and a plunging through the bushes ahead of us as if the creature, whatever it was, was hurriedly making its escape.

At the first sound we both stopped—the black trembling, frightened, and as white as the nature of his skin would permit—and cocking my double barreled rifle, I stood on the defensive, and at the same time anxiously inquired what it was.

My guide replied in broken English, that he had picked up in his intercourse with white traders, that it was a terrible gorilla, and that unless we turned back at once, and made good our retreat, we should probably never have the pleasures of seeing our friends again.

I had before heard some rather marvelous accounts of an animal so called, and said to beat a close resemblance to man, and I naturally felt a hunter's desire to see with my own eyes, and, if possible, add the skin of it to my collection of curiosities Therefore I was rather in favor of going forward than back, believing that my steadiness of nerve, quickness of sight, and reliability of my two loaded barrels would be sufficient to protect me from actual harm, to say nothing of the assistance in a strait of my companion who was armed with a spear that he could throw with the force and percision of an old harpooner.

"Can't think of turning back for a mere gorilla, that has been so frightened at our approach as to have fled away shrieking," said I, in a cool tone of contempt, intended to reassure my guide, and induce him to go forward. "What, two brave hunters, armed as we are, to run away from a beast that roams the forest—we who have killed the big snake, the leopard, and the crocodile! Pshaw, Mocha! that will not do—never, lad!"

"De snake, him big," replied Mocha, with his teeth almost chattering, and his eyes glaring upon the thickets all around him; "de leopard, him sabage; de croc'dile, him bigger; but de gorilla—oo oo-oof! him awful!"

"But we have not seen any gorilla yet," said I; "and if that animal that ran away was one, we are not likely to, either."

"Him woman run—him man stop, fight—him debil, master."

"Well, man, woman, or anything else, Mocha, I must see something before I go back frightened."

"Master him see no go back—him gorilla kill master."

I had by this time made up my mind to go forward through the thicket, even if I went alone; and ordering Mocha, in a tone not admitted of no question, to keep at my heels as he valued his life, I resolutely advanced a few paces, though if the truth must be told, not half so courageous in feelings as I seemed in action.

But at the end of those few paces I came to another sudden stand, for I saw a dense thicket some fifteen or twenty yards ahead, agitated by the moving of some heavy body within it, while almost immediately here appeared, in plain view, a monster of such hideous appearance that I felt the blood freeze through my veins and gather about my heart, as if appalled by some horrible visitant from the other world.

My powers of description are limited but had I the language of a Milton or a Dante, I could only hope to convey to your minds a faint idea of the hideousness of the living creature that now stood before me; as to its voice—its tones of warning, anger and defiance—I know not to what they can be likened, unless you can imagine the bark of a dog, the growl of a tiger, the snarl of a wolf, the trumpeting of an elephant, all united and combined with sulphurous vomitings from the regions of Pandemonium

In shape, he was like a man, but like a man deformed—with a monstrous big chest and body, small head planted down between his shoulders, large, long arms and huge hands, and short, thick bow legs terminating in hands instead of feet. He stood erect like a man, was nearly six feet in height, and was covered all over, face and all, with short, black hair. His head was small in proportion to his body, and had a human conformation. Fierce, glittering eyes, set deep in hollow, cavernous sockets, rolled and glared demonically The forehead was low, and retreated sharply. There was but little nose, with high, prominent cheek bones.

The mouth was immense, with huge massive jaws, and short, thin lips that parted angrily only to display a formidable and ferocious set of teeth, the canines being long and sharp-pointed.

He stood before us—erect, defiant and awful—uttering the horrible roar I have attempted to describe, and beating his breast with his huge fists, producing a hollow, drum-like sound that, combined with all the rest, was truly terrific, and made me wish I was safe beyond his reach Then he advanced a few steps, with a sort of rolling, waddling motion, stopped again, with his gleaming eyes fixed intently upon us, beat his breast as before and uttered that prolonged and dreadful roar.

I stood on the defensive, wisely determined to reserve my fire for the approaching crisis of my fate, hoping and praying I might be successful in putting an end to the monster. I had been in many perilous situations before, but none that ever affected me with such terror. One moment an icy chill would make me shiver and the next, perhaps I would feel a burning flush sending out the perspiration in streams. I glanced at the African, and saw him firmly planted, with his spear poised for the onset, his eyes dilated, his nostrils expanded, and his breast heaving.

"No run, master!" he said, in low, thick, almost inarticulate tones; "no 'scape him by run. Him swift as tiger—strong as elephant. Must kill!"

"Shall I fire now, Mocha?"

"No fire he come nigh—den fire through heart."

He was coming nearer and nearer by slow degrees, a few paces at a time, with a short, awful roaring and breast-beating interval between, and I thus had time to think over many of my sins, and say prayers that had been too long neglected.

"Mocha, be ready," I said, when the monster had once more stopped to roar and beat his breast within ten paces. "I am about to end this suspense—I am about to fire."

I took deliberate aim—but, spite of all I could do, my arms shook so that I was afraid to pull the trigger, and twice I lowered the weapon to get more steadiness of nerve. It was as if some fearful spell were on me and at the third trial it seemed as if the fingers of my right hand were paralyzed and would not obey my will, a fact for which I have never been able to account.

The monster again advanced, and now not more than five or six paces divided us, and he appeared as if to make his final desperate rush. Delay now would be death—and summoning all my will, I pulled both triggers in quick succession.

Only one barrel was discharged by the act, the other missing fire; but one ball went straight to its mark, and lodged in the breast of the gorilla. It did not bring him to the earth, however, but made him wildly furious; and gnashing his teeth, and uttering most unearthly shrieks and yells, he bounded forward for his revenge. Quick as lightning the gallant Mocha threw himself before me and struck with his spear but it might as well have been a reed. One blow of the ponderous arm of the brute turned it aside all shivered, while the hand of the other stretched the poor fellow bleeding and senseless on the earth. In his fall he came back against me with such force that I went down also. At that moment I had not a single hope of life, and knowing myself utterly defenceless, despair took complete possession of me, and I made no effort to rise.

This, and I believe this alone, was my salvation—for seeing us both still, and probably thinking us both dead, the furious brute seized my gun, and fairly denting the barrel with his teeth, he struck it against a tree with a force that shivered the stock and bent the iron nearly double; then throwing it down, putting his hands over his breast, and uttering the most terrible howlings and shriekings of rage and pain, he hastily disappeared in the dense jungle, leaving me to thank heaven I had so miraculously escaped unharmed.

Mocha had been stunned, and his breast badly lacerated, but he was neither killed nor mortally wounded; and dressing his wounds as well as I could, I got the poor fellow upon his feet, and assisted him back to the vessel, where our surgeons attended his case, and soon restored him to health. I did not forget that he had saved my life, and I assure you I made him proud and happy of the heroism he had displayed in my behalf.

Whether the gorilla died of his wound or not, I never knew, and never felt the least curiosity to go and see Certain it is he took his skin away with him, and I was only too glad to see the last of him. He was the first of his kind I ever saw alive, and, with heaven's permission, he will be the last I shall ever look upon in his native jungle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPORTANT LETTER

From a Distinguished Physician.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind, one or more and sometimes all yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored because but little understood by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won my hearty approval. I believe it likely to succeed when all the usual remedies fail, because it strikes at the root of the disease, viz., the acidified blood, while it heals the ulcerated membrane by direct application to the nasal passages. Its action is based on certain fixed rules, and unless the vital forces are too far exhausted, must, in the great majority of cases, effect a cure.

GEO. BEARD, M. D.
NORSCOTT BLOCK, So. FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 1, 1878.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

MAY safely claim to be one of the few popular remedies receiving the approval of medical gentlemen, who, in private, not only freely recommend it but use it in their families in preference to any of the preparations usually prescribed by physicians.

"You are aware," said a distinguished city physician, "that my obligations to the Mass. Medical Society are such that I cannot publicly recommend or prescribe the Radical Cure; but since I received so much relief from the use of it myself, after a thorough trial of the usual remedies, I have privately advised its use, and presume I have sent to your store no less than one hundred of my patients for it."

UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION.

GENTLEMEN,—We have sold SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for nearly one year, and can say candidly that we never sold a similar preparation that gave such universal satisfaction. We have to learn the first complaint yet.

We are not in the habit of recommending patent medicines, but your preparation meets the wants of thousands, and we think those afflicted should be convinced of its great merits so that their suffering will be relieved. We have been in the drug business for the past twelve years constantly, and sold everything for Catarrh, but yours leads all the rest. If you see proper you can use this letter or any part of it that you wish.

Very truly yours, S. D. BALDWIN & CO.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER

An Electro-Galvanic Battery combined with a highly Medicated Strengthening Plaster, forming the best Plaster for pains and aches in the World of Medicine.

ELECTRICITY

As a grand curative and restorative agent is not equalled by any element or medicine in the history of the healing art. Unless the vital spark has fled the body, restoration by means of electricity is possible. It is the last resort of all physicians and surgeons, and has rescued thousands, apparently dead, from an untimely grave, when no other human agency could have succeeded. This is the leading curative element in this Plaster.

BALSAM AND PINE.

The healing properties of our own fragrant balsam and pine and the gums of the East are too well known to require description. Their grateful, healing, soothing, and strengthening properties are known to thousands. When combined in accordance with late and important discoveries in pharmacy, their healing and strengthening properties are increased tenfold. In this respect our Plaster is the best in use without the aid of electricity.

TWO IN ONE.

Thus combined we have two grand medical agents in one, each of which performs its function and unitedly produce more cures than any liniment, lotion, wash, or plaster ever before compounded in the history of medicine. Try one. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

Sold by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States and Canadas, and by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

SHAPE & SIZE OF A SEMINAL PASTILLE

A Valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions & Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostrate Gland and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, it is quickly dissolved and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Direness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, Etc. Etc. and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Preparation, Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. —During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in a neat box, enough to last a month, and sent in a plain wrapper by mail sealed for $3.—Two boxes, (sufficient to effect a permanent cure unless in severe cases) $5.—Three boxes lasting three full months, will stop emissions, and restore vigor, in the worst cases. $7.—Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.

Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected.

Sent Sealed for stamp to any one. Sold ONLY by the

THE GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1880.

CITY AND COUNTY.

BRIEFLETS.

—Last of January.

—Attorney Todd, of Beloit, was in the city to-day.

—Sexagesima Sunday to-morrow. It would be just as sweet by any other name.

—Miss Minnie Holdredge is booked for an evening's readings at Brodhead on the 17th of February.

—Will Evenson is confined at home by inflammation of the stomach, but is not deemed dangerously ill.

—Song and testimony meeting at the First Methodist church this evening, and revival services every evening next week.

—Bob Rogan has been reinstated as night operator at the Northwestern freight depot, and will commence his work to-morrow night.

—Mrs. Gilmore, of Milwaukee, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. F. Carpenter She is known better here by her maiden name of Miss Bessie Sholes.

—It's a little early for soda water trade but E. V. Whiton & Co, have put into their drug store a nobby new fountain, which calls forth the praise of all who see it. It will be in readiness when the cold drink trade does open.

—Prof. Harry E. Arnold, of Milwaukee, has been engaged by the Pember House Glee Club for their entertainment February 10. He is one of the finest organists and pianists in the West, having been thoroughly educated in Europe, and though a young man has gained a wide reputation.

—Messrs. Yeomans & Prichard have just finished putting in the steam apparatus in Hiram Bump's new residence. It works to perfection, and reflects great credit on the firm who put it in. The same firm have also put in the gas and water pipes in equally good shape, and have done a work of which they have a right to feel proud.

—Assemblyman Lawrence has introduced a bill allowing the electors of the town of Janesville to hold their elections in the Third ward of this city, if a majority of them so decide by vote. A large number of the prominent citizens of the town have expressed by petition their desire to have their elections held in the city as it is more convenient for most of the voters, and this bill is simply expressive of this desire.

—Those who delight in the "Gospel Hymns" will have a chance to hear some of their pet melodies brought out grandly at the Band concert next Monday evening. A fantasia is to be played which will bring in "What shall the harvest be?" "Nearer, my God, to Thee." "Shall we gather at the river?" "Sweet Bye and Bye" and "Hold the Fort." It will be doubtless one of the most enjoyable numbers on the programme.

—Drs. Schaefer and Ablert, who are now stopping at the Pember house, yesterday met with remarkable success in treating James Goshen, for a tape worm. They succeeded in serving a writ of ejectment on the worm, and when measured it was found to be seventy-feet long. Mr. Goshen lives here, and as the facts are known to be as represented, the event has caused quite a little flurry of talk. The Doctors will remain at the Pember house for a short time longer, and can be consulted there free of charge.

—The readings by Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Evans at Cannon's hall next Tuesday evening, is to be a rich treat indeed. Both ladies are acknowledged artists and come here by the personal request of those who know of their abilities. The programme as arranged is made up of fresh pieces and presents a great variety from the best pens. Mrs. Evans is to render several selections in costume, and none are better able to handle dialects than she, and Mrs. Adams is capable of holding and thrilling an audience. At twenty-five cents the hall should be crowded.

GETTING ALONG WELL.

Mr. Robbins is comparatively comfortable, and while his recovery is by no means ensured, yet he is holding his own, and the chances grow daily better.

ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK, best accomodations, reduced prices.

THE BAND CONCERT.

The Bower City Band's annual concert is to be given at the Congregational church, next Monday evening. The preparations for this musical event have been extensive and thorough, and it bids fair to be the best concert yet given by that organization, which is saying much. It will be worthy of a crowded house, and the further fact that the Band is one which reflects such credit upon the city, should cause our citizens to give them a hearty support. Those who are to take part, aside from the members of the Band, are so well known here that they need no words of introduction or praise. The concert will be a choice one, as will be seen by the following programme:

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

The thermometer at 6 o'clock last evening stood at 20 degrees above; at 1 o'clock a. m. to-day, at 10 above; at 7 o'clock a. m. at 10 degrees above, and at 1 o'clock p. m. at 32 degrees above. Cloudy and windy.

The indications to-day are, for the upper lake region, colder, clear or fair weather, westerly to southeasterly winds, and rising barometer.

POST OFFICE CHANGES.

To-day is the last in which J. D. King serves as Assistant Postmaster in the office here, he having received his commission as Special Agent, and having received his orders to report for duty in Chicago, his time beginning to-morrow. He will probably go to Chicago Monday morning, and his duties will now keep him on the road much of the time, though he will continue to make Janesville his home. His promotion is in keeping with the civil service theory, for he has by hard work gained the experience which will fit him for such a position of trust and responsibility. He has in fact been connected more or less with the post office here since May 1859, when he opened a little news-stand in the post office, which was then located in the old Ogden block, while Col. Ezra Miller was postmaster. After the postoffice was removed to the Woolscroft building, he still retained the news-room, and at times assisted in the postoffice, and became familiar with all the details of the work. In August, 1867, on the resignation of Otto Horn, who was Assistant Postmaster, he was given that position, and has occupied it from that time to the present, having served four years as assistant to Rev. T. J. Ruger, four years to Hiram Bowen, and four years to H. A. Patterson. He has filled the place most acceptably to all. He has gained a complete knowledge of postoffice matters, which will prove a great help to him in making a success of the new position. While there will be regret at losing him from the office here, still his friends all rejoice in having him promoted, and all wish him the best of success. To Congressman Williams is mainly due the credit of securing the appointment for him. There were a number of applicants, and friends pressed their claims strongly, but King won. He has earned the position, and will surely fill it well. The district in which he is assigned to duty consists of Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, part of Michigan, and the territories of Dakotah and Wyoming.

Miss M. Louise Peterson, who has been in the postoffice for eleven years, will take the position, thus left vacant, and take charge of the money order and registered letter department. She understands the details thoroughly and will look after the duties of the position well.

Charles H. Patterson, will take Miss Peterson's place and be the Chief Clerk. He has been in the office for nearly five years.

Fred L. Dickerman will take his place as mailing clerk, and will attend to the making up of the mails, distribution, etc. He has been in the office now over three years. Willie T. Sherer has been added to the force, and takes Dickerman's old place.

Mr. Patterson has shown wisdom in selecting and keeping his employes, and in dividing the labor of the office so that all the details may be carefully looked after. The postoffice is in good shape, and instead of complaints being the rule, as they were years ago, they are now the exception, and the man at the head ought to have much credit, as well as those under him.

CHEERFULNESS and Rheumatism do not go together; for Rheumatism, use ST. JACOB'S OIL and be happy.

AFTER OVERCOATS.

Last evening an overcoat thief attempted to make a raid on a hallway of a boarding house on Center avenue. He took the precaution to tie the gate so that it would stay open, and give him a easy exit if he had to run, and having done this he managed to gain an entrance into the hall. He hadn't time to get an overcoat before he was discovered by one of the boarders. The would be pilferer skipped out hastily, and the boarder after him. The chase was kept up around the block, but the fellow got away.

DUVALL'S LETTER.

To the Editor.

JANESVILLE, Jan. 31, 1880.

I see that last evening's edition of your excellent daily has a convict's answer or partial review of a sermon delivered by me some months since, as reported in your paper. I have nothing to say by way of apology for what I said; but I will say that I never used Dr. Duvall's name in that sermon. The saying that a certain criminal was the physician for the prison, was said in my hearing in a temperance talk by one who had been a member of the State Board of Charities, who said in the same address that he had the conversation named with a certain convict doctor. If I have misjudged any one who is incarcerated in State prison for murder I am sorry, but when a man has been tried and convicted by twelve good men as jurymen ought to be, and by their verdict is sent up for life, I only have the evidence given. It seems to me that this charge on judge and jury is quite a serious reflection on their honor and candor, but I am not surprised at it at all. If we go into State prisons and obtain the verdict of criminals we shall generally find them finding fault with those who convicted them. I have my doubts about the safety of this course however. If this Duvall is innocent of the crime he has been sent to Waupun State prison for, no man knows better than he if he be innocent of the crime alleged, and no penalty can make him guilty; but the manner of his wife's death was to say the least a very unfortunate one for him. There is one thing certain, he is not in favor of capital punishment for murder; neither is Baumgarten nor Chistiansen. A life penalty in Waupun is far more preferable to them.

I had no idea that my hour's talk on that Sunday evening would so move the people of Wisconsin, in and out of prison, but I am not sorry. There may have been eight mistakes in my talk; they can be rectified when duly shown. But the principle of death for willful, malicious, premeditated murder, is the only safe one nevertheless,

H. SEWELL.

Swallowing

POISON!

Spurts of disgusting mucous from the nostrils or upon the tonsils, Watery Eyes Snuffles, Buzzing in the Ears, Deafness Crackling sensations in the Head, Intermittent Pains over the Eyes, Fœtid Breath, Nasal Twang, Scabs in the Nostrils, and Tickling in the Throat are

SIGNS of CATARRH.

No other such loathsome, treacherous and undermining malady curses mankind. One-fifth of our Children die of diseases generated by its Infectious Poison, and one-fourth of living men and women drag out miserable existences from the same cause. While asleep, the impurities in the nostrils are necessarily swallowed into the stomach, and inhaled into the lungs to poison every part of the system.

Dr. Wei De Meyer's Catarrh Cure absorbs the purulent virus and kills the seeds of poison in the farthest parts of the system. It will not only relieve, but certainly cure Catarrh at any stage. It is the only remedy which in our judgment, has ever yet really cured a case of Chronic Catarrh.

G G PRESBURY, Prop. West End Hotel, Long Branch Cured of 20 years Chronic Catarrh.
